Hi Shaun:

I was in the Animas Valley last night with community members. Many are using the EPA website for information. The following comments/requests were made about information:

1. Explain on the EPA website regarding treatment of mine discharge, state what the "treatment" includes.
2. If the EPA has offered water for livestock and crops, not all folks seem to be aware you would deliver, so perhaps would the website set forth, by region, that it will supply irrigation/livestock water and contact info.
3. The Albuquerque news reported on arsenic, lead and mercury and this creates confusion that folks would like clarified in the EPA's data reports and website.
4. Explain on the EPA website who will be cleaning wildlife, when that will begin and where folks should report viewing of birds, etc. that need to be cleaned.
